IRIS DAYLILIES

LONGFIELD
IRIS FARM

BLUFFTON, INDIANA

Greetings for 1959

Dear Garden Friends,

Rumors seem to be floating about concerning whether or not Longfield is continuing in business. This small catalogue should settle the question. Perhaps a little more explanation is needed to make the situation perfectly clear.

Since I have been teaching school, I have had less time to devote to my business. Last spring I informed Mr. Cook, Mr. Lapham, Mr. Waters and Mr. Jonas I could not go on with the business on the scale I had done in the past. I suggested that they find another outlet for their introductions. The correspondence concerning introductions was quite a task in itself. Mr. Cook decided to handle his own Iris this year. I believe, Schreiner's Iris Garden will be introducing Mr. Lapham's and Mr. Water's new Iris.

My intention is to limit my listings to only the newest and best Iris and Daylilies, gradually eliminating all the older varieties. I have worked with Iris since I was old enough to walk, so, raising Iris is almost inborn in me. I doubt if I will ever give up the business entirely. Perhaps some day it may only be a hobby!

Come see us! We are easy to find: — at the west end of Market St. in Bluffton on Indiana Route 124.

Height of Iris flowering season — Memorial Day
Height of Daylily season — July 1-15.

Sincerely,

Mary Williamson

1959 Introduction

Mrs. C. W. Naas of Celina, O. has been growing and breeding Iris for a number of years but this is her first introduction. She and her husband formerly lived in Detroit where Mrs. Naas was a very active member of the Detroit Iris Society. Mrs. Naas is also a judge of the A. I. S. We are glad that she is now practically a neighbor of ours.

SWIRLING SNOW (Naas No. E-30-56) (White seedlings X) (White seedling X Phoebe) H. C. 1958. A wonderful white Iris that has been attracting a great deal of attention. The flowers are very large with broad petals and wide hafts. The color is pure white with white beards. The standards are nicely domed. The slightly ruffled falls are almost horizontal. The heavy substance of the flowers and sturdiness of the stalks makes this an all weather Iris. 3 ft. Slightly fragrant.

A really fine Iris -----$20.00
